Learn To Return™

Delayed Care, First Aid

The LTR Delayed Care program is an entry level program that brings a higher level of both awareness and response capabilities to your field program or recreational pursuits.

Training Overview

This 1 day Delayed Care First-Aid program is designed for workers assigned to remote worksites or who are traveling through wilderness areas for their jobs. This program provides guidance, skills, and certifications for workers dealing with cardiac emergencies and basic trauma where rapid response is unrealistic. Students receive American Red Cross First Aid, CPR/AED, and Pathogen Protection in conjunction with the Learn To Return curriculum.

Program Focus

The program focus is to create an awareness of considerations for remote medical scenarios that occur in rural settings. Students will become familiar with the standards for remote field care, guidelines for prolonged treatment, risk assessment, and patient movement. The course will cover wound cleaning, laceration control techniques, improvised splinting, and wound management. In addition, CPR and its use under field conditions will also be addressed.

Practical Scenarios

Students should be prepared to participate in active drills that will have you interviewing, assessing, and treating a variety of simulated injuries and conditions throughout training. Using real world medical kits, course participants will be applying trauma dressings in bleeding emergencies, stabilizing fractures, conducting basic cervical spine assessment, and improvising litters. Expect to spend a lot of time out of your seats addressing potential field injuries.
